How can I help?

A front-end developer's role is to combine design and business logic to achieve a user-facing product.

To do this successfully, a wide skill set is necessary to produce a quality user experience that leads to meeting business goals. With my experience I can:

Create responsive websites that work on a wide range of devices

Assist with production of clean and functional design

Bridge communication gap between designers and developers

Integrate your website into an easy to use content management system

Testimonials

Working with Ian was better than expected and we had really high expectations. He is an incredibly talented developer but what really makes him stand out is his work ethic and steady approach. Time after time, and without us asking, he added enhancements and improvements that resulted in a better end product for us and our clients.

Adam Houston, Bridge Creative

We have the fortune of working with Ian on a very regular basis. Every single project is done in a timely fashion and is delivered exactly as is outlined. Beyond that, his development skills and expertise make him an invaluable part of our process. We absolutely offer our highest possible recommendation.

Douglas Berger, REMIXED

Ian has done a fantastic job overall. Not only the site is to design, the code is very clean and slick. Love the way he achieved the translations portion of the site.

Kalwinder Dohil, IT Manager at TIGI International
